

Empathy map

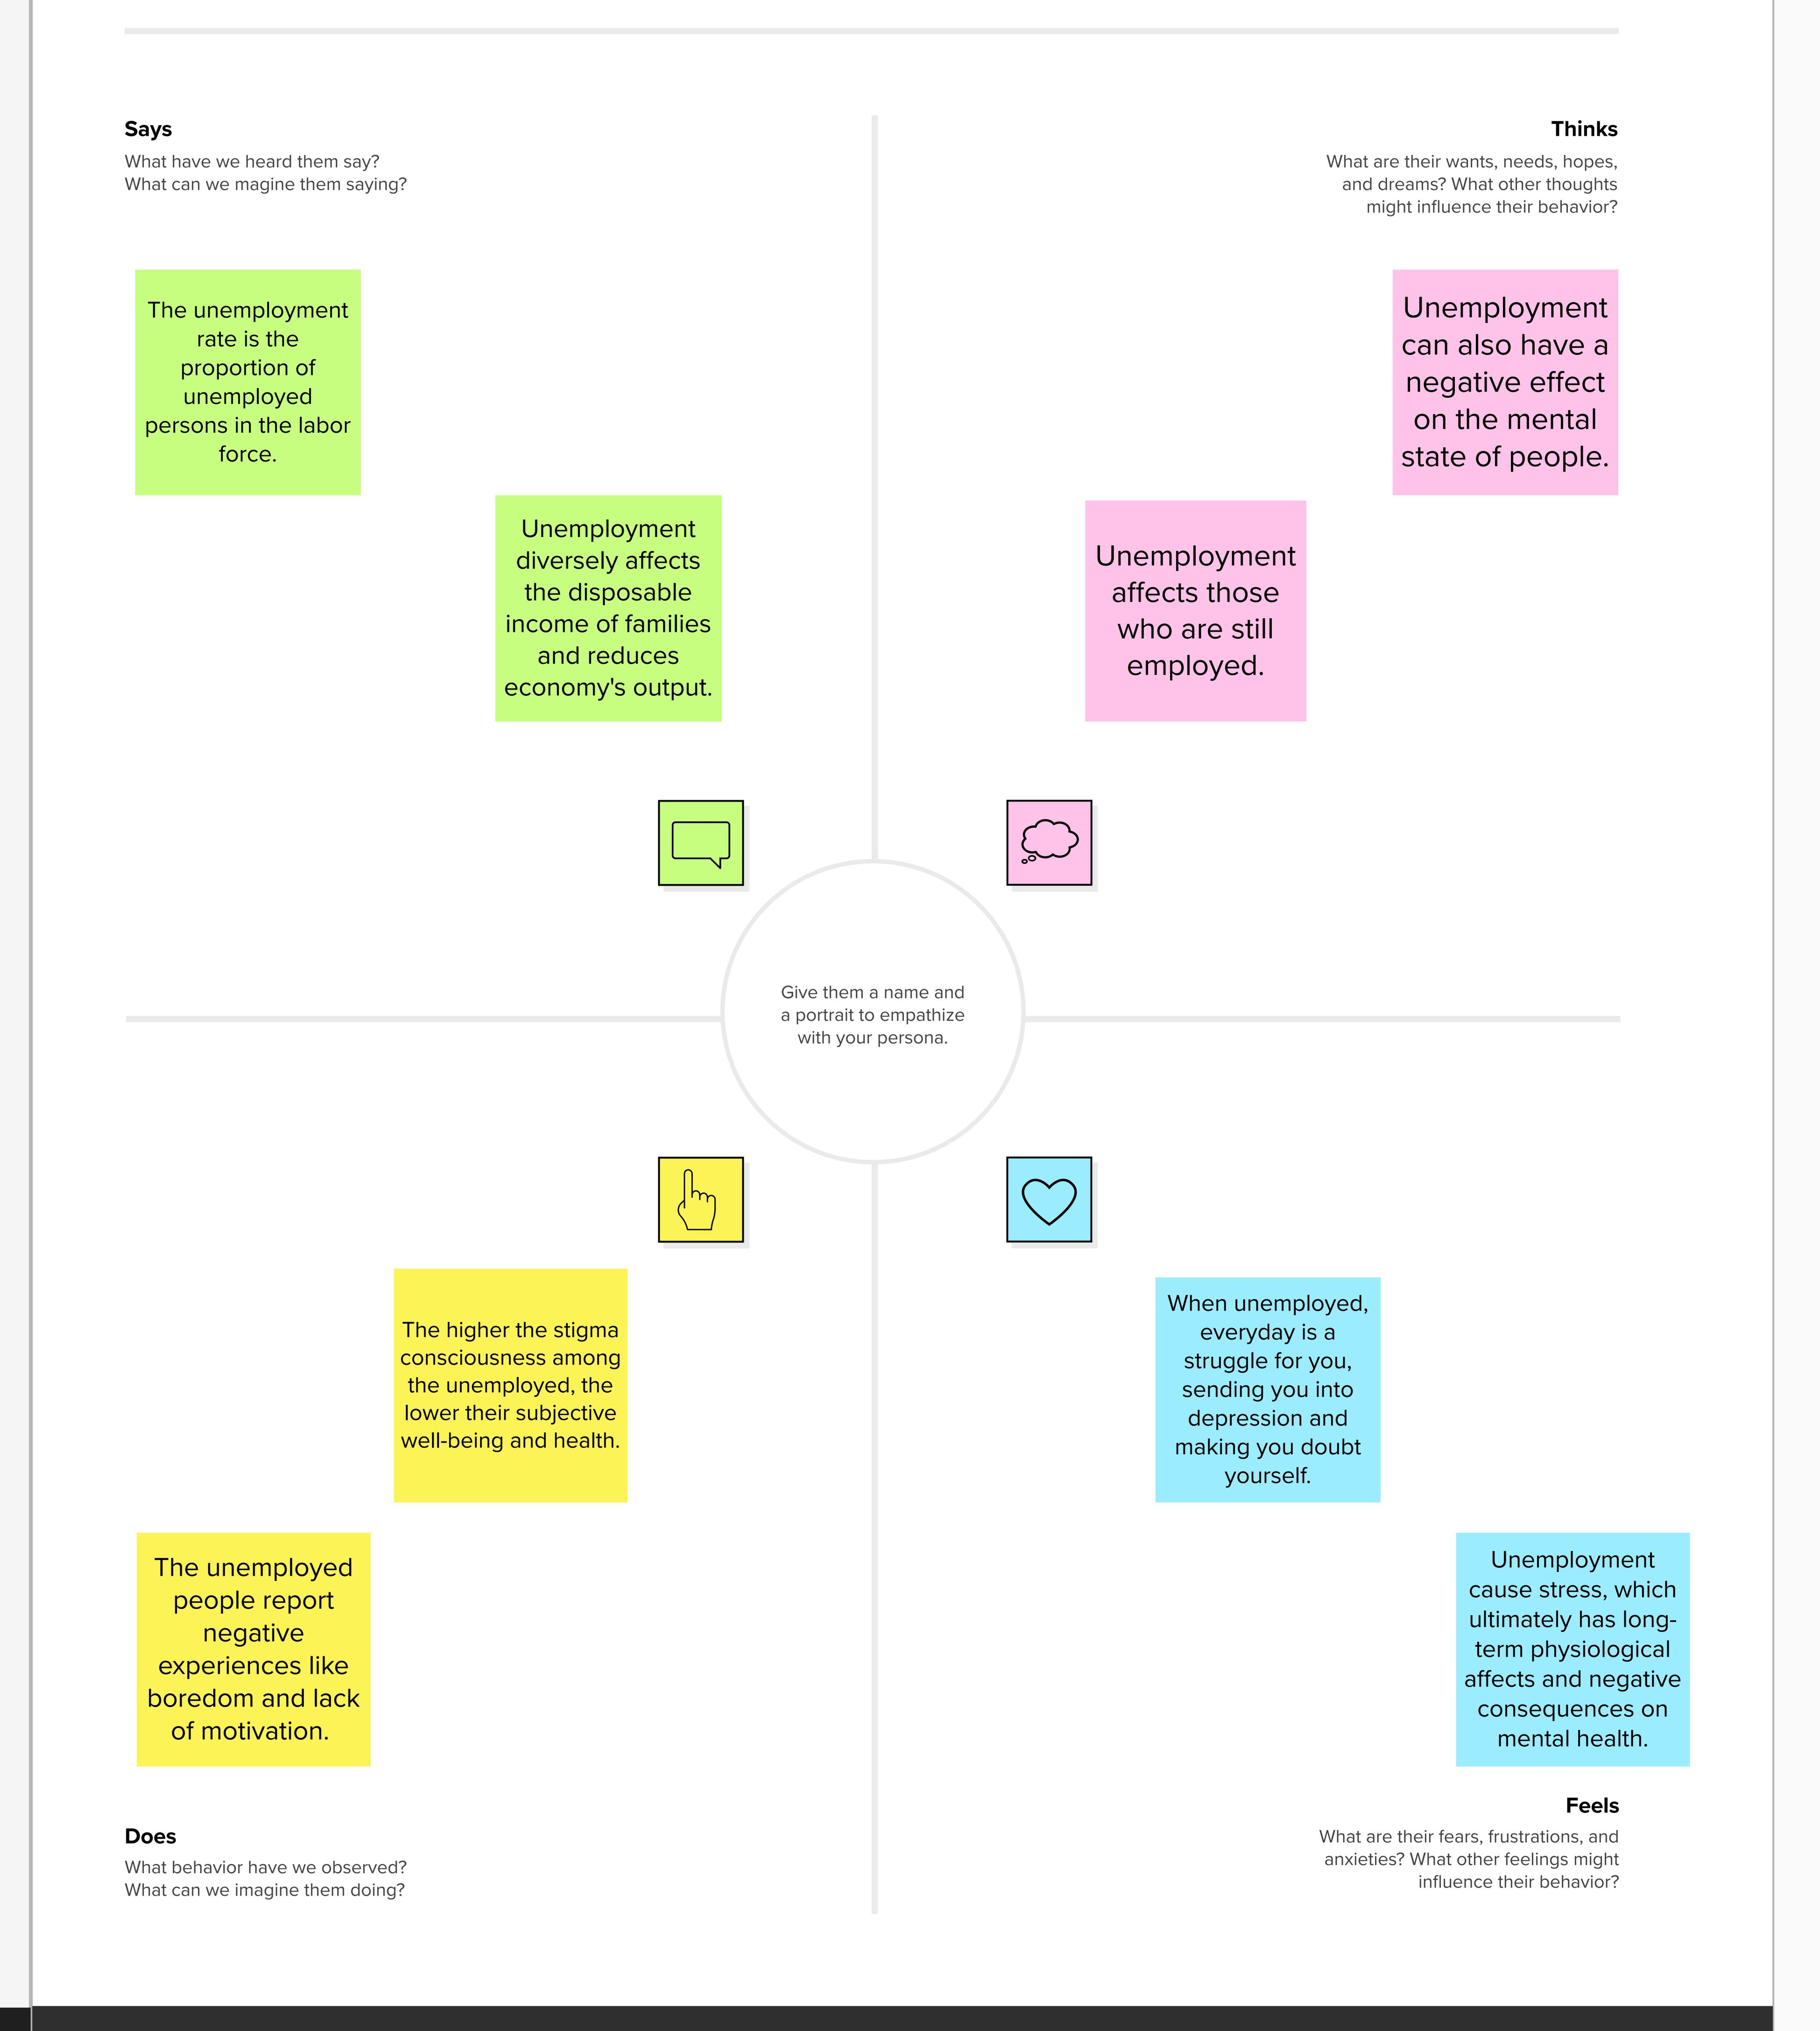

The economists describe unemployment as a condition of jobless within an economy.

Unemployment is a lack of utilization of resources and it eats up the production of economy. It can be concluded that unemployment is inversely related to productivity.

Build empathy

The information you a observations and res

The information you add here should be representative of the observations and research you've done about your users.

Share template feedback

